NOTICE

TO: ALL RESIDENT INSURANCE LICENSEES AND ADMITTED INSURERS

RE: CHANGES TO PROPERTY AND CASUALTY INSURANCE TESTING

An individual seeking to obtain an insurance license is required to submit passing examination results for the lines of authority sought. These examinations are currently administered by our testing vendor, PearsonVue (previously known as Promissor, Inc.). Existing practice requires an individual seeking licensure for property/casualty authority to submit passing examination results for part I property, part I casualty and part II property/casualty, combined. Part I examinations are specific to product knowledge while part II addresses state specific laws.

Requirement and Process Change

The division is continuing its efforts to review existing practices to conform to the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) Producer Licensing Uniformity Standards with respect to resident licensing. One standard requires a state to offer examinations separately by line of authority. Because Alaska has combined the property/casualty part II examination, we must bifurcate this examination to create separate part II examinations for property and casualty. Therefore, effective August 1, 2008, our property/casualty part II combined examination will no longer be offered. A person seeking licensure for property or casualty must register and take the separate exam (both parts I and II) for each line of authority sought. You may schedule all four parts of the examinations at one test session and will not incur any additional expense.

If you have questions, please contact the Licensing Section at (907) 465-2515.

Dated this 5th day of June, 2008.
