

Nita Madsen was appointed as Executive Director for the Alaska State Community Service Commission on June 1, 2007. Her degrees are in Early Childhood Education and Human Services; with the majority of her professional experience having been with Alaska Head Start and other Early Childhood Education programs. Prior to working for the State, her twenty plus years of experience range from class room teacher, education and staff development coordinator, to program director. Working in Head Start programs provided her the opportunity to truly learn the value of volunteers and the essential elements of volunteer management. Since beginning with the State in December of 2002, she has worked for Department of Education and Early Development and Department of Health and Social Services prior to her appointment to DCCED. Between October 2003 and January 2005, she was the Associate Coordinator with the Alaska State Community Service Commission
